

DAY 1279 of the J6 Political Hostage Crisis July 9, 2024

Joshua Atwood Holding His Newborn

This past Friday I was in the visitation room when Joshua Atwood was able to hold his 4-week-old for the first time. He held her the entire time except when she was eating, and mom had to hold her. He made sure all sitting near him saw his beautiful daughter.

Joshua has overcome much in his life. He has been with Brittanie for almost 8. He is determined to give his children everything he never had. He owns his own business and is the sole provider for his family. Brittanie is a stay-at-home mom of three young children. They have a five-year-old daughter, who was also at visitation this past week, a two-year-old son, and the one-month-old baby. Joshua was present at both of his older children's birth and cut the umbilical cord. That opportunity was stripped of this young family with the birth of their youngest child. Joshua was arrested on April 17, 2024. His youngest daughter was born on June 4, 2024. His youngest daughter tells her mom everyday "Dad is coming home today." If you would like to help this young family or simply learn more about them, you can visit <https://www.givesendgo.com/supporttheatwoods>

Joshua was recently arrested and is being held in Washington DC with no trial/court date to mention at this time.

Bryan Smith Medical Issues

Bryan was remanded into custody on a probation revocation recently due to a medical issue that causes his legs to swell making him unable to wear an ankle monitor. Bryan's doctors were looking into possibilities and thinking it could be a heart issue. This possible heart issue has not been monitored or treated in DC jail.

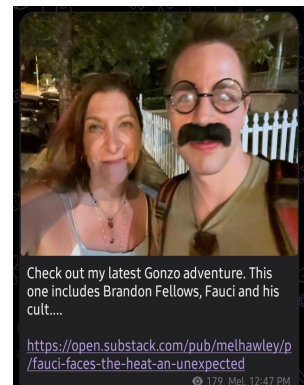

Bryan also struggles with medical issues sustained while serving in combat during his time in the US Army. Due to Bryan's injuries, he is 90% disabled. His wife is his caregiver. When he was remanded into custody he was not only taken from his wife and children, but he was also taken from his caregiver. During the past couple of months enduring incarceration, he has also not received care for these disabilities.

When Bryan was still out here among the free world, he was working on publishing media content on a site for the world to see. His content can be found by visiting WeThePeople News \(odysee.com\). Bryan also had a hand in the website open.ink where many informative documentaries and movies are able to be found, including several J6 and election related movies.

Bryan will be sentenced on August 20, 2024.

Adventures In DC Brandon & Mel

Brandon Fellows was not allowed to go back to NY state where he is from upon his release from prison. He is now staying in DC and attending Fauci events as often as possible. The latest one was at his local DC church.

J6 Ribbons Available

Ribbons support causes and bring awareness to a specific issue. This is no less true for J6ers.

The yellow represents the hope of all of them coming home.

The orange represents their clothing while incarcerated.

Although orange is not the color worn in all facilities, it is in DC.

July 4th Ponderings

From Prison

All,

I hope this 4th of July finds you all well. It's been an interesting experience today inside prison walls experiencing a Holiday which celebrates the birth of our Nation and the shared Freedoms, Rights and Privileges that Nation was created to represent and protect for her people.

My experience that has led me into these walls has been interesting to say the least, most of all, what has been interesting was to see my assumptions about what our Nation is and does be challenged and, in many ways, disproven. You know what they say when you "Assume", you make an "Ass" out of "U" and "ME!"

When I studied Political Science, I grew a great appreciation for the principles that lead to the founding of our Nation. In many ways, the revolution to free the 13 colonies from England, was not so much about what we wanted to become, as much as it was about what WE, 'the People' did not want to BE. We did not want to be a society of people who had limited freedoms, we did not want to be dictated to about rules of commerce beyond the reasonable, we did not want to have our private lives invaded on by government speculation, we wanted to be free of false imprisonment, bills of attainder and many more invasions the British Monarch imposed upon the colonists. The 'Americas' were populated with people who came through ventures such as Jamestown, seeking economic opportunity in the 'New World' that were space in the Old...It was founded by people who were brought by providence to places like Plymouth Rock seeking freedom from religious persecutions, to determine as they saw fit what was morally right or wrong based on the dictates of their conscious. Some combination of those two things, for hundreds of years now, has caused people to abandon the land of their nativity and join the Union of States that represents liberation from what we don't want to be, and opportunity to chart our own course.

I have ancestry that immigrated to the 'Americas' through BOTH Jamestown in its first decade and landed with the Pilgrims on Plymouth rock itself. I have an Ancestor who at the age of 43, left his farm and family to join the North Carolina Cavalry Militia to fight in the Revolutionary war itself. The cause of America runs deep within my veins.

From this prison, I reflect upon that which Americans Assume. We assume our rights are unalienable, but when we encounter the criminal justice system as it is currently constituted we often find that our assumptions do indeed make an ASS out of U and ME...Many a soldier has signed up for military or other public service under the premise that they were protecting our sacred rights, however the place where they are needed most, inside a courtroom, those rights, secured by blood of patriots are often surrendered and waived as if they had no importance at all. Rights enumerated and secured by the people, as a bargain to the passing of the Constitution called the Bill of Rights include things like the Right to freedom of speech, assembly, and press. The right to self-defense, the right to due process, privacy and to be secure in their person, papers, homes and things, to council, to confront your accuser to settle claims made against you, and the right to a speedy trial to name a few.

These rights in many ways are those rights the people need inside a courtroom more than any other place. Yet in our current justice system the moment a criminal defendant is charged, he 1) waives his right to confront his accuser 2) is told not to speak publicly and freely 3) given limits of association and advised not to talk to the press 4) his right to self-defense is stripped 5) his right to privacy is curtailed by pre-trial conditions often including home visits, and other invasive medical interventions 6) the right to a speedy trial is almost always immediately waved 7) a right to a trial by jury is waived because of the 'trial tax' plea deals are sought to make the 'pain go away'....These are just a few of the rights that are almost immediately surrendered or waived because the mechanisms of the system demand it. For those who are brave enough to 'stand on their rights' the consequences can be severe...

The minority communities in this country have some very low sentiments when it comes to patriotic fervor, they have complained for decades about the unjust 'system'...Having gone through this myself, I can say their complaints are not unjustified. Until this 'touches you' it's hard to comprehend how you feel when your rights evaporate before your eyes. ONLY someone who benefits from this system in some way or contributes to its continuation would make arguments to the contrary. As my defense attorney said at one point when I pointed out how 'my rights' seemed non-existent, "I won't defend the system".

Enjoy the freedom you do have, we still are a free country, I do believe with all my heart that liberty trumps all, and over time its cause will prevail. There is a lot to work on to live up to the blood spilt and sacrifices that were made to set up the principles we must strive to live up to. I make no excuses for the prisoner, me included, but I do think how we go about our system of justice can be improved to live up to the ethos and principles our Nation Assumes to have. "He who stands on his rights, injures no one"

Happy 4th of July.

The Supreme Court Investigating

The Supreme Court of the United States now has a case before it seeking and investigation into biases political and religious in nature. There are many Judges named in the court filing. The court filing also includes 4 attachments. The first attachment is the Writ of Mandamus and prohibition, an exhibit that includes the names of defendants and sentencing of J6 victims, a letter to SCOTUS and USDC of DC, and another attachment outlining the expected behaviors of how judges are supposed to rule in the courtroom. The filing was put forth by ADA Advocate ADA Advocate Janice Wolk Grenadier.
