DAY 1334 of the J6 Political Hostage Crisis September 3, 2024

American Values Christian Votes

You don't have to be Christian to encourage the Christian vote. Patriots understand that Freedom of religion is part of our American rights & our country is founded on Judeo-Christian values. November's election is an important time to stand for those values or lose them! To win an election, the runners need votes from all denominations of faith. Two factors are obvious: 1. The Christian vote can sway election results 2. About 26 million Christians are either not registered or not making it to the polls. Common sense (and there's not enough of that in the World these days.. Lol) makes it clear to any Patriot that reaching out to "their neighbor" & encouraging a vote for biblical values in swing states is going to make a HUGE difference. Fortunately, Laurel Brooks founded Write Now (a non profit that has addresses in Swing states & pre-written letters to print) making it easy for us to affect at least 10 people in this election. Join Osprey Sensei along with thousands of others who are pledging at least 10 stamped envelopes and 10 minutes of their time to gain the vote for American values from millions of Christians.

Visit the dedicated page she created to make it easy for you to be a part of the movement!

J6ers need our help getting those votes... America and the entire world need it too! Let's get to it!

Hardest Days

By Taylor Johnatakis

All,

Whenever someone asks me "How are you doing today?", I usually reply something like, "well it's prison, so it's 4 out of 10, you can't get above a 4, so overall pretty well." It usually starts a discussion about how prison sucks, it's designed to be that way, if it didn't stink, people might want to stay.

There are however days that are worse than others. There are days where you are locked down, these can be days of immense boredom, where you don't get phone time or email time. There are days where 'events' happen that cause major adrenaline rushes and a stark realization that sometimes people in prison have nothing to lose, and will fight over the smallest disrespect. There are times of loneliness, even though you are surrounded by people almost all the time, you can feel all alone in what you are going through at the moment. It's not like you can phone a friend to go for ice cream and talk it out, or do many of the things you do to 'cope'. Then there are the holidays and special family days you miss.

Today is one of those days. When I first was unexpectedly remanded to jail, it was two days before Thanksgiving, the shock of the experience and the fact I was in solitary confinement made that holiday almost non-existent. Then my first day in the J6 jail Pod was my birthday, I was so glad to be out of solitary finally I almost viewed it as a gift. Then came Christmas, that was really hard, so many family events center around Christmas, including that special morning, and I was absent. Caleb's birthday the day after Christmas happened, then New Years, then Valentines Day, Bensen, Elise and Joe's birthdays, Marie and I's anniversary, Fisher's birthday, each one passed, and I felt those days deeply.

Today is Marie's Birthday. It's the last major family event that I will have missed to round out the year, after this I start counting each event as the second time I will have missed them. Today, I wish I could be there to make Marie breakfast in bed, bring her flowers home from work, give her gifts, including ones I would have helped the kids get without her knowledge. I wish I could take the whole family out to dinner to celebrate, and have goofy waiters sing happy birthday. Yes today is one of those days, that even if every thing went perfect here in Prison, it would still be a difficult day. These are the days that count hard, these are the days that the punishment of prison sits heavy on your heart.

I love Marie dearly, I couldn't ask for a better woman, and better mother to my children. I am grateful for all she does, for the strength she has shown through not only this last year, but the years before as we faced many adversities together. Through each one of them we came out stronger together. She has had to do the roll of two parents, figure out how to pay bills, and even find meaning and purpose in this experience starting the Non-profit LeftBehindandWithout.org. Marie and I often say to each other when times feel hard and heavy, "this won't last forever" and "this will end". It will, of this we can be sure.

Marie, I love you, I hope you have a great Birthday even without me there. I hope you know I am thinking about you all day, I look forward to doing all the birthday things again sooner than later...To those reading this, don't forget to vote, and tell your friends to vote to!

Love,
Taylor

Who Is Jeremy Brown?
Whistleblower, J6 Political Prisoner To Stand Trial Before Judge Mehta

If we don't provide oversight of our weaponized government and weaponized judicial system, and if we outsource the protection of our freedom to others, then the government we have is no longer...

Jeremy also appeared in the Gateway Pundit last week. The article tells about the government trying and failing to tie Jeremy's two misdemeanor charges to the other Oath Keepers charges. There is mention, as is common in January 6th cases, of felony charges being added as Brown refuses to sign a plea deal. It is also mentioned that Brown could have simply attended his bench trial via zoom as it is only 2 misdemeanors, but Judge Mehta would not allow that even though there is no jury to witness his demeanor. And why would the government, now, more than three years later add a charge to Brown? This whistle blower and the world deserve to know and should be able to witness what ever occurs on Wednesday as Jeremy Brown takes on the government who has unlimited resources and has wasted much of them. ## Releasing Them Judge Beryl Howell

U. S. District Judge Beryl Howell has ordered the release of Patrick Stedman who had 4 misdemeanors and the felony obstruction charge. Stedman will remain incarcerated until October 27 due to a mandatory one year sentence. This is all explained in greater detail in the Newsweek article.

Stedman is one of two January 6th defendants to be told they would be released sooner than later as the obstruction charge can no longer be held up against them without actual proof something was indeed obstructed. The other person had the same misdemeanor charges, but also had 5 felonies according to the Telegram post. (Image taken from Telegram)
