J6 Children's Christmas Fundraiser Another Success from Patriot Mail Project

While you can visit Patriotmailproject.com to find the addresses of the men and women incarcerated, and those on home confinement, or even those beyond their sentences the past three Christmas seasons the American people have donated Christmas to the children of J6ers. This year was no exception.

There was a total of 66 families who registered their children for assistance. There was $38,166 donated and $578 will be sent to the families. Thank you to all who donated and all who have made this possible for the past three years. (Image taken from @prcalloway on X)

Barry Ramey on X @RameyIsRight

Barry Ramey currently sits in a halfway house in Miami FL with few more privileges than he had in prison. Among his new found freedoms are time with his fiancé and fur baby while on their way to appointments.

Barry may not be aware, but several are being made aware of twitter spaces occurring because of his X page. You can follow him at @RameyIsRight and learn through the twitter spaces, watch him enjoy his freedom, and have a good laugh at his posts too!

It Runs In the Family TAYLOR JOHNATAKIS

All,

A few days ago I was standing in a hallway, stalled from moving around the prison due to a 'closed quarters blue light'. I have always been somewhat of an oddity here in prison, sparking people's curiosity, I have been described as 'aristocratic', which I find hilarious, because I was simply a peasant septic installer before all this, it didn't feel very aristocratic driving home with dirt, mud and other people's crap all over my clothes...but I digress.

While standing in the hallway, the discussion turned to what I would do when 'Trump sets you free' (which god willing he will) I told them I planned on working with my wife's Non-Profit called Left Behind and Without (www.LeftBehindandWithout.org) which is dedicated to helping kids with incarcerated parents enroll in sports, music, drama, dance and camps, any program that can help them have good social connections and positive adult mentorship. The inmates lit up, they said that was great, many of them mentioned they could use something like that for their kids. The discussion turned to intergenerational incarceration. Almost immediately upon my incarceration and in every institution I have been, without regards to race, there seems to be one massive commonality; almost everyone's Father was incarcerated while they were kids.

This particular discussion was with 8 men, 100% of the men, aside from myself, stuck in the hall that day, had had their Father incarcerated while they were kids/teenagers. 3 of the men, were actually old enough to already have kids over 18...want to know something devastating...100% of the men had an incarcerated Father, and the 3 with adult kids, all 3 of them had already seen their adult sons go to jail. Meaning those families had at least 3 generations of incarceration.

Like military service often runs in families, so apparently do prison sentences. How can this happen in our society? Ultimately criminals must be held accountable, but the fact that crime seems to run in families, and is epidemic in certain neighborhoods and cities, we as a society have a lot to work on. Recently I heard on the radio that in America 1 in 3 adult Black men is a felon! According to yahoo news, in 2007 1 in 30 adults was under the jurisdiction of the department of corrections and 1 in 28 children had an incarcerated parent. The soft on crime answers won't solve these problems, if anything they probably exacerbate them, but there is one thing we can do, we can stop the cycle in it's tracks one family at a time by focusing on the next generation.

When I think of Making America Great Again, MAGA, along with a strong economy, strong military, leading the world in technological innovation, I also think of healing America's families. It needs to start with this generation. We will never be able to 'pay restitution' for our past mistakes, that just not how things work, but we can chart a new course forward. When this is over, I want to dedicate myself to helping the children of incarcerated adults not 'pay for the sins of their fathers', help them to STOP the cycles that have devastated entire family lines. Quality Adult mentorship, constructive activities after school, having goals and something to work towards, learning discipline whether by being on a wrestling team, a dance squad, or learning to play the piano or guitar can go a long way to begin the healing of our country.

Our choices make all the difference, I want to be free to choose to Be the change I want to see in the world, and one of the things I want to do is stop the cycle, to stop seeing generation after generation serve time in prison, I would rather them serve the community with their choices to start Keeping America Great. I hope to soon be returned to my family to help Trump with the MAGA agenda, to Make America Great Again, the the way I feel inspired to do it. I am grateful to have experienced this, though painful it has been, I am grateful for the support my family has received, but I am also blessed that the few dozen children my wife has enrolled in programs have been blessed because of this experience. God is a mysterious man, he makes that which was intended for Evil turn to Good; Providence. Taylor

Grandmother of 5 Enduring the Federal Government

Suzan McClain went to the capitol on January 6th, she wandered around the building a few minutes and then walked back out. Now that she is enduring an eye issue and barely able to see, now, the federal government wants to make her travel to DC for court.

This article details some of what many of the January 6th defendants and their families have endured. How much time must they spend away from family and friends? One of the federal agents on her case was removed from child sex abuse cases because she walked in the capitol building according to the article.

Restricted Area Or Restricted Justice

In the latest article from Mel Hawley one is presented the facts of what 18 U.S. Code 1752 is, who it was used against, and the abuses using it against those present at the capitol on January 6th. After all when anyone else who enters the capitol is given a $50 fine before they are sent on their way to go live their lives as they choose.

The 18 U.S Code 1752 spells out a restricted area due a person guarded by secret service detail. On January 6th, not only were the restricted areas not properly labeled and distinctly visible, but there were rallies occurring and permits were revoked as the speakers were in the middle of the event. How many people have endured the government's over reach because they were going to attend another event that day?

Darrell Neely Rearrested for Helping Someone

Darrell Neely has been reconnected with his contacts from his first round in the DC Gulag after being picked up and brought back to the area from NC. This after Neely had someone in his room on the phone with another when police showed up. Police are said to have walked in and through the room and left according to the article. Shortly after that the police are said to have come back and detained him. While the papers are sealed and the reason is not yet known, Neely like many upon release was not given his identification card so he has no way to prove he is who he says.

Neely is one of many journalists who have experienced the over reach of the government although there are still numerous journalists who were present that day and have yet to receive so much as a home raid let alone incarceration.
